THE NEWS, THE SENTINEL, AND THE EDUCATIONAL CONVENTION.

In the Sentinel of the 13th inst., we find the following:

"The Educational Convention probably adjourned last night. At the time of this writing, it has done nothing worth of special attention. The speeches have generally been mediocre and below. The discussion on the introduction of the Bible in our schools struck us as very absurd, when we have not the schools themselves.—RALPH NEWS.

Judge Battle says the last educational convention was the ablest body assembled in North Carolina for many a day. Those who heard the discussions speak in the highest terms of those who took part in them. Our engagements were such that we could not attend. Among the speakers were Major Bingham, Rev. B. Craven, D. D., Rev. Thomas H. Pritchard, D. D., Rev. J. M. Atkinson, D. D., Rev. Neill McKoy, Rev. A. W. Mangum, Rev. W. M. Wingate, D. D., Prof. McVey, Prof. Fairchild, Prof. W. J. Young, Prof. J. Stephens, Prof. O. W. Carr, Prof. Lovejoy, Prof. Hobgood, Dr. Mattoon, Prof. Doubt, Prof. Browder, Prof. J. H. not to name the distinguished politicians and statesmen, such as Senator Merrimon, Gov. Caldwell, Hon. Thomas C. Fuller, Hon. John W. Norwood, W. W. Peebles, and many others we might name.

The best and ablest of both political parties, and all religious denominations in the State made up this convention, which fell below "mediocre" in the estimation of some incompetent judges.

"Mediocre," says Worcester, is "of middle rank, middling, mean." Educators, statesmen and divines, wake up! exert yourselves, that we may next year have an educational convention which may reach, if not go beyond "mediocre" in the estimation of editors and printers.—Raleigh Sentinel.

It is with no view of retracting or qualifying the above language from the Raleigh News that we submit a few comments on the Sentinel's article.

The opinion we expressed is our own, and not Judge Battle's. It may be a very poor opinion, but it is ours nevertheless. We are responsible for it—we adhere to it—and we shall continue to stand by it.

We do not profess to be a "competent judge," but we profess to edit a paper and to express our own opinion when it suits us, without consulting the Sir Oracle who presides over the columns of the Sentinel.

Our objectionable criticism was written after the Convention had been in session two days, the whole length of time for which it was called, and nothing practical had been done. If it had adjourned then, it would have been a failure so far as any useful object had been attained by its deliberations.

The first day was devoted to a discussion concerning the introduction of the Bible into our schools. The debate was irrelevant, several of the speeches were not in the best taste, and much valuable time of the Convention was uselessly consumed. It reminded us of members of a family quarreling over the quality and price of the furniture to adorn their house, when they did not have a house, or even a foot of land on which to build it. Hence, it struck us as absurd, and we think so still.

The second day's proceedings were more important. The discussion on the re-establishment of the University, a subject dear to the people of North Carolina, was characterized by too much denominational feeling. The question in which the public interest is not whether this or that denomination shall be represented in the Faculty, but whether we shall have any University at all. Irrelevant matters were dragged into the debate and we heard some speeches on the subject that could not be well classed as mediocre.

The Convention in view of the barren results of the two days' proceedings, very wisely, in our opinion concluded to sit another day. On the 3rd day, some practical work was done and a permanent State Educational Association was organized. This was the crowning act of the Convention. Upon its adjournment, we wrote the following:

"On the whole, the Convention has accomplished some good. It has given a fresh impetus to the cause of education in the State, and we look for good results from its deliberations."

According to the Sentinel, Judge Battle says the late educational convention was the ablest body assembled in North Carolina for many a day. Now we do not doubt there were men of ability in that body. The day before the article above quoted from the News appeared, we made the following editorial comments:

"In point of the ability, numbers and character of the delegates the Convention is a gratifying success."

What it shall do for the cause of education—what practical good it shall accomplish or shall put in the train of accomplishment, will be better known when its deliberations are concluded.

Certainly there were some able gentlemen in the Convention, scholars, divines and politicians. We have heard some of the speeches complimented, and no doubt deservedly so. It would be almost a miracle if, after three days discussion on various literary subjects, in which some of our best teachers and ministers participated, some good speeches had not been made. But we repeat, that the addresses we heard were generally mediocre and below.

Some of the leading delegates, including a prominent officer of the Convention, have endorsed our criticism, and fully concur in our opinion. No later than yesterday we heard an able member of the legal profession, himself an eloquent speaker, say that he heard some of the stupidest speeches in the Convention to which he ever listened. This was his language to us. We spoke of the speeches "generally," and did not mean to disparage the efforts of any particular individuals.

Thorough and accomplished scholars are not necessarily good speakers. We have heard that, in the English Parliament, distinguished as one of the most learned deliberative bodies in the world, the speeches of the members are often exceedingly dull and uninteresting, and exert a very soporific effect upon their auditors. Force of delivery and gesture, impressiveness of manner and style, practical ideas and suggestions, beauty and conciseness of language, and that eloquence that melts the soul, are not always to be found associated with the profound learning and thorough mental training of the most eminent professors and educators.

We are willing to accord the Convention its full meed of praise, and concede its ability, but we are not prepared to say with the Sentinel, that "the best and ablest men of both political parties and all religious denominations made up this Convention," when we remember that more than three-fourths of the counties in the State were not represented at all.

The Sentinel talks flippantly about "incompetent judges," and "the estimation of editors and printers."

Now, we have not seen the estimate of any printer on the speeches of the Convention. The opinions of many of them are entitled to as much that of the Sentinel. The proprietors of the Sentinel are printers themselves, and a paper is presumed to express the views of its owners.

"Editors and printers" forsooth! We were under the impression that news papers were usually established to express the views and sentiments of the Editors who conduct them. It seems, however, that we were mistaken.

But having had the temerity to give an opinion of our own without consulting that very "competent judge" the Sir Oracle who presides over the Sentinel, we do not feel inclined to cry out peccati, as did our cotemporary recently, nor do we propose to get down on our knees, and in sack-cloth and ashes beg pardon of the literary luminary, whose brilliant beams have thrown a halo of light around so many controversies, and dazzled the world of letters by coruscations of splendor and magnificence.

It was rashness on our part that we did not consult our learned and accurate neighbor, before rushing so suddenly into print concerning the Educational Convention. But if the accuracy of its judgment is to be measured by the accuracy of its opinion of its own infallibility, we do not know that we have committed a very grievous sin after all.

REMEMBER THE ELECTION DAY, AUGUST THE SEVENTH.

Go to the election on the seventh day of August, and vote for the amendments. It is no party contest. The welfare of the whole State is concerned.

The changes proposed by the amendments to be voted on in August will greatly relieve the burdens that now bear so heavily on our people. They should be adopted by an overwhelming vote.

It is highly important that all the proposed amendments to the Constitution be adopted. If they are voted down, it is because of apathy in the election. The matter is one of vital moment to the whole State.

The election on the Constitutional Amendments occurs on August the 7th. The time is rapidly drawing near. Both parties have concurred in the amendment and they have passed the Legislature by the requisite majority. It only remains for the people to ratify them at the polls.

When a crowd of jayhawkers started a disturbance in a Texas church, the other day, the preacher raised up a shotgun and said: "William Deltie, sit down, or I will make it painful for you." William sat down, and was as quiet as a lamb.

An observing fellow, writing for the Boston Post about brides at Niagara, says that the New York bride sticks to her skilled society manners intact. The Boston bride is quiet and self-contained. The southern and western brides are demonstrative and happy.

A gentleman in our office yesterday, from Johnston county, reports the cotton crop as being in a good condition, fully up to the general average. The corn crop, however, is poor. The latter has been much damaged by a worm of some kind and by the dry weather.

It effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy. Sold by all first-class druggists.

A TINY LITTLE SIN.

He kissed me, and I knew 'twas wrong,
For he was neither kith nor kin;
Need one do penance very long
For such a tiny little sin?
He pressed my hand that wasn't right;
Why will men have such wicked ways?
It wasn't for a minute—quite—
But in it there were days and days.
There's mischief in the Moon, I know;
When I requested him to go;
I meant it, too—I almost think.
But, after all, I'm not to blame;
He took the kiss, I do think men
Are quite without the sense of shame—
I wonder when he'll come again.

A New Rifle Invented.

The Kansas City Times of Friday says: "We were shown last night a weapon which is a triumphant trophy of the inventive genius of Kansas City, and which surpasses anything we have ever seen in armory or on battle-field. It surpasses the famed needle-gun of Prussia, and throws the Minie and Henry rifles and the French Chassepot entirely in the shade. This unique, neat and deadly weapon is a recent invention, known as the Happonen breech-loading rifle, of which our enterprising fellow-citizens, Mr. Thomas Haire and Mr. Happonen, are the owners and patentees. Without at present attempting a minute constructive description of it, we will say that it is a model piece of mechanism, neatness, symmetry and proportion. It loads at the breech, and can be fired all day at the rate of twenty-five rounds per minute, the ball being the size of the ordinary Minie ball. It weighs but seven pounds, and has almost an accurate range of one mile, and is a dead shot at 1,000 or 1,500 yards.

We have heard of several ladies who have been admitted to the bar; but of their subsequent appearance in Court we have failed to be informed. Perhaps hard fate decreed that they should join, for impatient years, metaphorically as well as really, the small army of "maiden attorneys." We find a certain Miss Hulet, of Mt. Vernon, Illinois, an exception, and we hand her a step further down to fame with great gratification. In the eternal fitness of things her first client was a washerwoman, and her opponent that eternal foe of the frugal housewife, a butcher. The case coming up, Miss Hulet took her seat at the trial table, calm as a May morning, laid aside her hat, to which a gallant and trembling bailiff had utterly failed to object, and made her statement short and to the point, and over in ten minutes. Then the butcher, through a legal friend, told his tale. Miss Hulet closed. She went for that butcher. She held him up to the scorn of mankind. She drew a picture of the butcher—big, strong, lusty, a being in the disguise of man—and then of the washerwoman—small, weak, helpless, old—and soon had the sympathies of the jury enlisted on behalf of her client. The jury went out, and in two minutes returned with a verdict for the washerwoman and her fair advocate. The court-room was crowded, and the sympathy of the people was with the young lady advocate.

MAN'S HEAD CUT OFF BY LIGHTNING.—At Fort Wayne, Ind., a young man by the name of William Robertson went out hunting, last Friday, but did not return as expected, and his friends have been busy searching for him ever since. He was found Sunday morning, about three miles from town, lying about fifteen feet from a big tree which had been struck by lightning. His head was severed from his body, and the two were lying some distance apart. The theory of the coroner's jury is that Robertson took shelter under the tree, with his gun in his shoulder, thereby drawing the electricity upon himself.

Philadelphia has a curious club. It consists of a coterie of four ladies, one of whom is Mrs. Horace Howard Furness, the wife of the latest editor of Shakespeare. All the members subscribe to the Chaucer Society, and hold regular discussions on the new points raised by the Society's editors as to the due succession of the Tales, the authenticity of certain lines and minor poems attributed to Chaucer, his treatment of the final e, his characteristics as a poet, etc.
